

It was a pretty awesome experience as usual. We were reminded of whose we are and what we are supposed to be doing. We were reminded that we are the light in this broken world. Nick Vujicic certainly reminded us that our personal obstacles are no match for the power of God.

How has your thinking and awareness changed this week? First thing I did Monday morning was to pay for the breakfast of the guy behind me in the Dunkin Donuts drive through. Something simple that I can occasionally do to keep my "outward" muscles moving. It's so easy to drop back into the ho-hum of the day to day routines we often call normal. Let's make some new habits, create a new normal.

Have you downloaded the PK App yet? If not, please do - it will help you with an amazing amount of male-oriented content as well as the ability to connect with other PK followers worldwide. In addition, there is a Maryland Coalition of Men's Ministries group for those in Maryland.

We'll do this again next year (with a different marketing plan - I learned a few things ;-)

In the meantime, lets keep building relationships and continue our development into the men God has called us to be. We can certainly see the value in that - now we need to pursue it.

"For if a man belongs to Christ, he is a new person. The old life is gone. New life has begun." 2 Cor 5:17
